The Funeral.

The funeral service attending Mrs. James Bright's obsequies took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Beecher, at 11 o'clock last Sunday morning. It was among the most largely attended funeral services held in Yale for a long time. The capacity of the home with its many and wide rooms was fully tested, and many could not gain entrance. The unusual circumstance of the deceased almost literally terminating her bridal tour by walking into the grave, seemed such a sad ending for one so young and with such bright prospects, that deep sympathy was felt by the whole community and this manifested itself by the immense throng in attendance.

The service was brief and simple, and consisted of singing by the choir, reading of scripture, prayer, and lesson pointing by the officiating minister. Following the church service came the very beautiful and impressive ritual of the OES of which society deceased was a member. This service was in charge of E. F. Fead, who performed the duties of Worthy Patron in the Order.

At the close of these services the form of the beloved wife, daughter and sister was borne, between ranks which did the honors of the Order, to the awaiting funeral cortege in which it was borne to the Silent City. Here was the closing ceremony, as with bated breath and in sad silence, the body, enclosed in a beautiful casket, which itself was wreathed in flowers, was lowered in a tastefully lined grave. An iron self-looking vault had been provided, into which secure keeping the casket was consigned. A marked feature of the obsequies was the abundant flowers enshrouding the coffin, and the floral decorations sent in by the Order and others. It was in the midst of this array of most beautiful designs that the form of the loved one lay in state; her robe making one think of the scripture "Prepared as a bride, adorned for her husband."

Among those attending the funeral from abroad we note the presence of J. L. Benedict and wife, C. Noble and wife, of Brown City; Mr. and Mrs. Mason, of Detroit; Mrs. Bright and daughter, mother and sister of the bereft husband, of Baden, Ont., also Charles Bright, a brother from Brown City; Minnie Barnum; and also Mr. and Mrs. Lawson, of Detroit.

The bereft ones wish us to express in their behalf their appreciation and thanks for the kindness shown them in the midst of sorrow, and the countless ministrations tendered, and aid rendered at the obsequies.

Elder Newman's Lecture.

At the Disciple church last Monday evening a large congregation assembled to hear Elder C. B. Newman, of Detroit, deliver his lecture on "The Creation of Atmosphere." The air which surrounds our globe was dwelt upon in its nature and uses, and then used as a text for the lecture. The speaker drew a vivid picture of the mental and moral atmosphere that surrounds all homes and society. He said a boy or girl reared in the right kind of a home and place, breathing the right kind of air in companions and books, was almost sure to be mentally and morally healthy. He made it quite plain on the other hand that no one could expect to have or maintain this state and go on breathing tainted air.

The lecture was forceful and full of good solid thought, and the lecturer is evidently a deep and ready thinker on a wide range of topics, otherwise he could not have been the ready talker he proved himself to be. The evening was a rich repast to all present. Perhaps the most serious and only criticism we could offer, is the lecturer's highest praise. A deep and forceful preacher cannot be a successful platform lecturer, if by that is meant a mere polite entertainer. The cast of his mind, the intense moral feelings which make a good and forceful preacher, disqualify him from being an actor—a mere buffoon. And it is for this very reason that Mr. Newman's lecture was grand. He felt that both he and his message had a high mission, and he had the power of personality, the heart all aglow with his theme, and the burning words of earnest speech, to impress his hearers. The lecture abounded in wit and witticisms; but there was a weight about it which left every hearer the richer and better for the evening's entertainment.

Brought Good Fortune.

A small item in his own paper lately brought amazing good fortune to Editor Chris. Reitter, of the Saginaw (Mich.) Post and Zeitung. He and his family had the grip in its worst form. Their doctor did them no good. Then he read that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds was a guaranteed cure for la grippe and all throat and lung troubles; tried it and says: "Three bottles cured the whole family. No other medicine on earth equals it." Only 50c and $1.00 at Grant Holden's drug store. Trial bottles free.

The Holden Reunion.

For years it has been the custom of the Holden family to have a re-union on New Year's day. This year the gathering was with Grant Holden, at his residence on the corner of Mechanic and Kennelick streets. The company consisted of the grandmother, her children, grand-children and other relatives—all about 40 were present. Among those from a distance, we note that C. R. Holden and family, of Standish, and Will and Jess with their families, from Brown City were in attendance.

There is something indescribable in all re-unions of friends and this quality is much intensified when the gathering is of parents, sons and daughters, grand-children and other close relatives. There is the feeling growing out of years of home association which no stranger can feel. And how rich the memories of other years, as that memory is stirred by the home coming—the gathering after years of separation, it may be, in the old place about the common hearthstone. There is no banquet on earth which equals such a feast. The greetings given, the souls bridging by love the wide span of intervening years, or as often happens, these years for the time are blotted out and the guests are boys and girls again. The enjoyment, the bliss which comes from such re-unions is closely akin to that awaiting us above.

The assembly last Tuesday was a soulful and happy one. Old and young alike enjoyed themselves on this the first day of the new year, and the beginning of a new century. To attempt a description of the dinner served, of the happy circle which surrounded the tables, the merriment that flowed, and the unbounded joy of the meeting, is a folly we will not at present commit. There is something about a dinner of this kind, and the relish of the eaters as they encircle the tables, which even type cannot tell. May the circle as it widens from year to year, remain unbroken, and may many like home-comings be in store for the guests in years to come.

That Fiftieth Milestone.

On Monday evening, Dec. 31, 1900, there assembled at the residence of J. C. Holden and wife, on Mechanic street, a jolly company of guests, all bent on watching the old year out and the new in, and feeling the mark to make their bow to the young century. Of course, aside from this it was known that the 50th notch was to be cut in J. C. Holden's birthday stick, and a note of entry in the ledger that he had rounded out a full quarter of a century in a business career.

A large company of invited guests were present, and it goes without saying that they knew the latch string of a good time was easily pulled in that home. As the hours passed and the new century loomed up in the near east, they all partook of the last supper of 1900, and the farewell banquet to the departing century. As a token of regards for the hosts, and a memento marking the rounding of a half century, a fine upholstered leather covered chair was presented Mr. Holden. Now if the next half century could be so celebrated; yes, if Carl could be assured of a like gathering one hundred notches further on, we would not be surprised if he would not be willing to make the present himself. But by that time he will have grown young, and a chair will not be a useful gift.

The Theatre.

Manager Holden has secured the Lillian Lyons Dramatic Company for a week. They will open Monday evening, Jan. 7th, and continue through the week. This is one of the best companies on the road, having played all the large cities of the state and the press speak highly of them.

Miss Lillian Lyons, leading lady of the Lillian Lyons Dramatic Company, is one of the most natural actresses on the stage today, and her wardrobe is without doubt the most expensive worn by any actress outside the larger cities.

Miss Lillian Lyons, supported by the talented actor, Frank J. Dean, and a company of both dramatic and vaudeville artists, will open a week's engagement at the Opera House, Monday, Jan. 7th, presenting the strongest dramas and comedies with a full line of specialties, making a fine series of performances. Prices, 10, 20, and 30c.

The Lillian Lyons Stock Co. which is playing a week's engagement at Hart's opera house has drawn large crowds and proven one of the best of repertoire companies on the road. Each member of the company is an artist of recognized ability. The specialties between the acts are exceptionally good.—St. Louis (Mich.) Republican.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure headache, nervousness, melancholy, sleeplessness, fainting and dizzy spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Potosi, Ia., "and a lame bank paid me so I could not dress myself, but Electric Bitters wholly cured me, and, although 73 years old, I now am able to do all my household work." It overcomes constipation, improves appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at Grant Holden's drug store.
